"In 1674, New Jersey was split into East Jersey and West Jersey by a boundary line extending straight north through the country from Little Egg Harbor to the 'utmost branch of the Delaware River.' By an Act of the Assembly of East Jersey in 1682, the province was divided into the four counties of Bergen, Essex, Middlesex and Monmouth." The recording of deeds began in the county seat, which was the village of Hackensack, in 1715 but the records did include some deeds from as far back as 1689. The author has written abstracts from the information contained in the Bergen County, New Jersey, Deed Books A through N, comprising records from 1689 to 1801. The original deed books have suffered extensive damage and the index of names has been lost thereby increasing the genealogical value of this particular work. While the handwritten deeds often run several pages, they usually repeat the vital information over and over again. Mr. Davis has consolidated the pertinent information into an informative and comprehensive abstract. Each entry contains, in order: the date of the transaction, the name of the grantor(s), the place of residence of the grantor(s), the name of the grantee(s), the place of residence of the grantee(s), price, the area of land involved, the location of the land, neighbors, chain of deed, other landmarks, signature of the grantor(s), signatures of the witnesses, and the signatures of others. The author has also included an every-name index for the ease of researching names.

Minute book (1768-1821) of meetings of the owners of Assiscunk Creek meadows, Burlington County; record book (ca. 1764-1785) relating to land partition in Bergen Township (now Hackensack); minute book (1685-1705) of Board of General Proprietors of the Eastern Division of New Jersey; account books (1696) of East Jersey quitrents; indentures (1791-1829) of John Denn, conveying lands in Salem County; surveys, releases, maps, and other documents (ca. 1810-1860), pertaining to Hibernia tract, Rockaway Township, Morris County; list of property (1834) in Bergen County taken and occupied by Morris Canal and Banking Company; account book and deeds (1709-1722), relating to Ramapo Purchase, a tract in Bergen County, N.J., and Rockland County, N.Y.; and Jersey City title search and maps (1869) for land owned by the Coles family.

The Architecture of Bergen County, New Jersey presents an accessible overview of the county's architectural heritage and its historic structures. The volume explores the styles, trends, and events that influenced the design and setting of the region's buildings. More than 150 photos document Bergen County's architectural treasures, generating awareness and appreciation for these structures and their history. The Architecture of Bergen County, New Jersey demonstrates the close association between architectural development at the national and local levels, and shows how social, technological, and political changes occurring within the county have been reflected in the building types and styles of the area.

Abstracts of deeds recorded in East Jersey deed books B2 and C2 between 1719 and 1727. East Jersey at that time consisted of Bergen County, Essex County, Middlesex County, Monmouth County, and Somerset County. Research in land records is a must when performing genealogy research. The earliest deed in this volume is dated 1682. There is also the will of Albert Terhunen of New York, dated 1721. There is even a seller of land who lost his deed after being taken by pirates! A must-have book for anyone researching East Jersey during this time period.
