This book deals with the relevance of recognition and validation of non-formal and informal learning education and training, the workplace and society. In an increasing number of countries, it is at the top of the policy and research agenda ranking among the possible ways to redress the glaring lack of relevant academic and vocational qualifications and to promote the development of competences and certification procedures which recognise different types of learning, including formal, non-formal and informal learning. The aim of the book is therefore to present and share experience, expertise and lessons in such a way that enables its effective and immediate use across the full spectrum of country contexts, whether in the developing or developed world. It examines the importance of meeting institutional and political requirements that give genuine value to the recognition of non-formal and informal learning; it shows why recognition is important and clarifies its usefulness and the role it serves in education, working life and voluntary work; it emphasises the importance of the coordination, interests, motivations, trust and acceptance by all stakeholders. The volume is also premised on an understanding of a learning society, in which all social and cultural groups, irrespective of gender, race, social class, ethnicity, mental health difficulties are entitled to quality learning throughout their lives. Overall the thrust is to see the importance of recognising non-formal and informal learning as part of the larger movement for re-directing education and training for change. This change is one that builds on an equitable society and economy and on sustainable development principles and values such as respect for others, respect for difference and diversity, exploration and dialogue.

This book provides policy recommendations on how best to structure and organise systems for recognition of non-formal and informal learning and is based on an OECD review of 22 countries.

Don't Change the Light Bulbs offers tips and hints on how to be the best teacher you can be, and is written by some of the most respected leaders in education today. It covers primary, secondary and post 16 phases, in addition to cross curricular sections on leadership, ICT, inclusion, creativity, SEN and tutoring. It also presents the practical advice of those who have been there and done it and who now want to share their collective wisdom with you. The aim of which is to make education better, not just in your classroom but for everyone. A useful and inspirational book, it can be read straight through, or dipped in and out of for subject specific advice. A one-stop shop to inspire, invigorate and re-energise teachers and leaders alike, it's comprehensively written and covers an exceptional subject breadth. There is something for everyone, as it provides hints and ideas from both sides of the knowledge/skills debate, and challenges the perceived divide between primary and secondary pedagogy. Don't Change the Light Bulbs will provoke discussion, not only over its useful ideas, but also because of how it seeks to rethink the way we see imagined dichotomies in education. The wise words found within its pages will inspire your teaching, encouraging and supporting you, whilst you are stimulated to think outside of the classroom walls. For use by, and of interest to, everyone involved in the education sector.

A visual resource for students providing training in construction crafts. It covers the Craft Certificate requirements, giving information that students need to pass their exam, with exam style multiple-choice assessment questions, which provide extra support for revision and exam preparation.

Being a parent is never an easy task, let alone a single parent to two young children. I gained a lot of weight with both of my pregnancies and found that I had no time or energy to take care of myself, so I hid my body away in baggy jumpers, kept out of family photos and resigned myself to blending into the background in life. I felt fat and ugly and hated my body. After years spent starving myself as a model I found myself alone and overweight with two children. So I changed my lifestyle to achieve the body of my dreams all without having a gym membership or any help from others. I have since gone on to help thousands of people worldwide to realise their own fitness goals and turn their lives around, and here I'm pleased to share my journey with you all and encourage you to do the same and take control of your life.

The sequel to Traces Of Me and the second book of this steamy trilogy, April finally finds herself blissfully in love as she overcomes her insecurities and fears of dating. Although love is very rarely straight-forward because there are never just two people involved in a relationship; people are far too keen to stick their nose in where it's not wanted but will true love be strong enough to survive? A heart-wrenching soul-searching blaze of love, lust and unexpected twists that will leave your toes curling, heart racing and mind whirling. We'll all been there ourselves, we've all felt what April is going through and somehow the pages irresistibly turn by themselves for yet another thrilling read that's impossible to put down.

As April approaches her thirtieth birthday she finally meets the love of her life but it comes at a cost; an artisanal and honest open-hearted tongue-in-cheek account of finding true love in a world now overruled by beauty, social media and selfies. From ugly duckling to elegant swan infused with self-doubt, arguments and endearment; this is a journey to captivate and consume the mind and how we question beauty. Stir your soul and hold on tight for a modern day Bridget Jones. A tale to both bless and haunt you forever.
